WHAT IS A SEMINARY?

Rosie Sisler is a sixth grade school teacher at West Rockville Elementary in Rockville, Id. The other day she asked her class to write the definition of a seminary as part of a language arts exercise. Not all of the students knew what a seminary was, but some attempted to put in words their definition. Here are a few

Stokes received an overwhelming number of votes to be named The Seminarian's Man of the Year.

Stokes was born in the slum area of the city of Cleveland. Little did he dream as a young boy that someday he would be mayor of that town. His father died when he was a year old. For the next 11 years, he lived with his mother and brother in their one bed, one bedroom apartment. His mother drilled into his head the same statement everyday: "Study, so you'll be semebody."

By age 17 Carl was a school drop-out.

choice descriptions (they are pretty close to being accurate!)

Seminary: - a place where dead people are, --quiet, alone.

- --well. I think semi means small, but I den't know what nary means.
- -- a place where mental retarded people are kept.
- -- a place where they bury dead people.
- -- a place where they study about the eye and do research about eyes.
- -- a part of the brain.

Just think, one of these children could grow up to be president!

The LCA staff executive charged with responsibility for drafting social action programs predicts a "swing to conservatism in the United States" in the next five years. The Rev. Carl E. Thomas of Now York City told the presidents of the ICA's 32 synods at their annual meeting in Cincinnati.

"The country simple needs time to absorb the vast amount of social legislation adopted recently. The people need time to catch up. Look at the problems of the Office of Economic Opportunity and Social Security amendments had in Congress this last session. Look at the popularity of the Romneys, Reagans and Wallaces and one must ask why they are so popular."

Pastor Thomas, executive secretary of the ICA Board of Social Ministry. noted there a ro several emerging trends between those he labelled "political trends" and "Social Ministry Responses." In addition to the swing to conservatism. Pastor Thomas - who, incidently, at 37 is the youngest top staff executive in the ICA, cited as political trends:

"The amount of money the church puts into social ministry operations is closely related to the political situation. When a government does not respond to the basic needs of its people, the needs remain unfilled or they are assumed by the private sector of the society. Since only government has sufficient resources to respond adequately, needs often remain unfilled.

"Related to this is the fact that the amount of money needed from the church depends on the government's definition of the basic rights of all citizens. Education has not always been a 'right' now it is. Guaranteed income, in my judgment, will soon be a 'right' not a dole; health services are increasingly, a 'right' for some segments of society.

"If welfare is a right - ought not social services be a right also? "

Among social ministry trends. Pastor Thomas identified:

"1. Larger inter-Lutheran multifunction programs. It's the only option. Agencies, as they expand, will need a larger constituency base.

MIPUSITION UN

AM (1) 5 1-2

by John Dietz (reprinted from Unofficial Perspective)

The Lord rears from Zion and utters his voice from Jerusalem; the farms of the nation are in serrow and the top of the Sequeia withers.

Thus says the Lord:

"For three transgressions of Russia and for four, I will not turn away my anger, because they have destroyed Hungary and the freedom of her people.

So I will consume her in the threes of revolt and make her peoples to rise up against her. I will burn Moscow with an infernant utterly waste her vast wealth, And the Stviet people shall be ruled by enemies; by those who hate them shall they be subjugated."

Thus says the Lord,

"For three transgressions of China and for four, I will not turn away my anger, because they subjugated a peaceful people and sent their leaders into exile.

So I will cause fire to rain upon Peking, and bombs shall fell upon it at night.

The land shall be torm by confusion, and many will die in revolt,

And the rice fields shall glow with hell-fire, and atomic waste shall shine in the land by night."

Thus says the Lord,

"For three transgressions of Cuba and for four, I will not turn away my anger, because he fosters death in the lands of his brothers and he does not shrink from killing his fellow man. So I will leave his land to famine and hunger, and fothers shall not be able to buy food for their children. And Havanna shall grown under the yoke of masters, and others shall rule in the streets of the capital. So I will destroy with fire the cane fields, and the land will be devastated and black."

Thus says the Lord,

"For three transgressions of South Africa and for four, I will not turn away my anger, because they make their people to grean in slavery and their black ones cry in anguish.

So I shell cause confusion to rise in the land, and the blacks shall massacre their masters. The diamond mines shall be sealed, and blood shall be the product of the land."

Thus says the Lord,

"For three transgressions of Israel and for four, I will not turn away my anger, because they did not hear the cries of the homeless and sent refugees into the desert.

So I shall destroy their country, by the hands of the homeless they shall die.

And Tel Aviv shall no longer be the home of progress and the Jordan will run with the blood of the slain."

Thus says the Lord,

"For three transgressions of the United States and for four, I will not turn away my anger, because they make their poor to live in ghettees and turn their faces to the suburbs;
They hear not the cries of anguish of the black man, and they allow rats to attack children;
They go off to fight for freedom,
but ignore the need of their brothers at home;
They kill children with fire in Asia, and with bullets in the cities of America;
they make churches into clubs for the self-righteous and the house of God becomes a place of show.
Yet I brought down Rome the almighty, and the kingdom of Germany lasted only twelve years.

You have been given more than any nation; your riches are like none before, Many have called you to justice, and your land has lived in freedom.

Behold, I shall make your cities into rubble, and your fine army shall be torm by its fees. Your maney and comfort can avail you nothing, and your fed bellies will die with you. The man who pushes the button shall die also, and the submarines cannot dive deep enough.

"I will punish you for your iniquities."

"2. New programs, more closely related to the urban scene and to congregation, will develop under present corporate structures. Housing, day care, community organization, will be increasingly popular.

"3. New areas of partmership. I suspect that inter-Protestant agencies are not far off - but closer than most of us realize are the possibilities of joint Lutheran-Roman Catholic services. These operations will be financed by church, government and community."

Pastor Themas said his whole outlook was based on 3 pre-suppositions:

"First, that in the 5-10 year period ahead the major social problems of the present will still be unsolved. The depth of the crisis in race relations, the disintegration of the cities, the gap between the haves and the have nots will yet be with a (Cont. in next column) us.

"Secondly, new problems will appear. By guess is that they largely will affect the white middle class. The youth revolution, as seen on college campuses, is just beginning. The increased number of aging who feel useless and nonproductive will be a major source of concern.

"And finally, no one can predict the world scene in 5-10 years. Other Viet Nams are not impossible."

Once in the little town of Seminarianville there was a very rich and powerful man named Idecide. Also living in Seminarianville was a somewhat less rich man, who was, however, youthful and extremely idontcarewhathesays. One day by chance these two were placed together in the same train car on a journey. Out of mere politeness, they struck up a conversation. Much to the chagrin of both of these they found out that they really liked each other, and each discovered the other to be human. Idecide found out that identcarewhathesays's middle name was butismconcerned, and idontcarewhathesays found out that idecide's middle name was ireallywishtohelp. Their relationship became entirely different after they realized that both were sensitive people with feelings and wore willing to talk and be friendly. The two men became such good friends that they went into business together and called it: Idecideireallywishtohelp & Identicarewhathesaysbutiamconcerned's law firm.

Examinating committees are really strange things; one most often thinks of them as something to be wary of and not trusted. I was personally impressed with the tone and outcome of the meeting held with our examinating committed from the Eastern Penn Synod last weekend. joyed the relaxed at mosphere and the chance to get to know them and talk to them in the fashion that we did. I realize that it is probably not the students place to make suggestions but some of the other synods should take their cue from such a procedure and maybe the attitude of students toward examinating committees would change.

here's what's happening

We have been faced with a great task for the past four and one-half menths of rewriting the By-Laws of our Student Body Constitution. The new four year program of the Seminary has made it necessary for us to rewrite our method of election of Student Body officers. committee organized to do this rewriting, the three class presidents, the Student Body Secretary and Vice-President, have done a fine job. They have come up with a fine working plan for future elections one which I recommend to the student body. They have even done the impossible, they have streamlined the government. They have made the do-nothing positions of Vice-President and Secretary responsible offices-a once thought impossibility They have reduced the number of committees and produced an outline for the Student Body which I am sure will produce better functioning and more informed officers and students. I have that when we get together before the end of the quarter to vote on these changes you will all be out to support the outstanding work of the committee.

I feel that this constitution revision is the most important task for us as a student body this year. It is something which must be done and will be done. hope, no, I know that all of you will support us in this effort. The meeting will be before the end of this quarter, the date will be announced shortly.

The next event coming up, after exams, is Fastrach. We missed it last year but this year we are to enjoy it. I hope that the entire student body and faculty (including wives) will be there. I hope that it will be a very enjoyable evening. filled with laughter and joy. I hope the fun we will poke at ourselves will help us to realize that L.T.S. is not really such a bad place after all.

accumulating an impressive record of public service.

During the summer Stokes met with persons in the black community who might have caused disturbances, urging them to avoid acts of violence.

What role does Stokes see for the church? "Make sure justice is being done in your neighborhood...There can be no greater source of strength and support and motivation of public activity than the church itself. The churches should be the leaders in the area of human relations."

Stokes encourages churchmen to get involed in politics as well.

Carl Stokes, a man who has achieved much in his 40 years, sets the nod as Nan of the Year in Cleveland, & on this campus.
